

scout goes to the groomers...

how Simpsons is this photograph?

I recall that episode where Santa's Little Helper runs away and the photo they run in the lost posers feature Homer grabbing for the dog. Scout had a long day at the groomers, but she said that he was on his best behavior today so that made us proud. Dad and I walked in while he was still on the table and we hustled out of there before he saw us. Dad and I sat in the car until we saw that Scout was done. There was a big front window to this place. We saw everything. When we came in to get him, he heard us and began to bark. This set off a chain reaction. The dog that us in the cage next to him began to bark and then we heard barking from way in the back. He was frantic until we got in the car. Then he stopped drooling.

